To Whom It May Concern:

Rami Guirguis has been an enjoyable, hardworking and dependable addition to MetaCure from day one. He arrived with a significant amount of relevant medical and technical experience, which was apparent in his contributions. He was able to impress and remain motivated, even when business is less than ideal.

As a Field Clinical Engineer, we have depended on his ability to maintain good rapport and credibility with physicians and their staff. Rami is very creative has been known to initiate his own solutions if one is not readily available. On many occasions, we have relied on his ability to think outside the box, his attention to detail and his ability to quickly respond in order to make things happen.

Rami can work independently as well as within the group as a team, and has a very positive effect on the rest of the team.

We are deeply saddened to release such a capable employee due to corporate changes. Rami would be a strong addition to any company and has my complete endorsement for any position requiring an active thinking technical representative.

Sincerely,
